“ Dear Gramma,
I will always admire your strength, perseverance, and strong will that kept you going through good time and bad during your almost 93 years on this Earth. I can also attest to the fact that your work ethic, attention to detail, and unwillingness to settle for anything less than perfect was unmatched by even the most stellar of Marines! Most of all, I will forever admire your ability to give all of your heart and soul to those that you loved and cared for. These traits are not only what made you so special and unique; they are also the things that I appreciated most about you and that provided an excellent example for me to model my life after.

Today, on October 8th, what would have been your 93rd birthday, all those people who you loved and cared for are gathered to honor and celebrate your life. I know that this was always a bittersweet day for you as it is also the 12th anniversary of Dad's passing. However, I am comforted to know that after all these years you will finally be reunited with your only son. I wish you the happiest 93rd birthday imaginable. Give Dad a big hug for me when you see him. I will greatly miss you and always love you.

David
