“ I never had enough chances to visit you, Noni, but in a way I'm sort of glad. While I didn't get to say goodbye, I have no sad memories of you. I have no memory of you being sick from your ailments. You were always just happy in my memory. We played your handheld casino games, and you gave them to me as a present. I always loved your Beanie Baby collection too, and how well you kept them. Because of this, you will live on in my memory as you were back then. I still miss you, and I still miss Keith.

Though my memory of you stays intact, I still wanted to be there for you. It really hurt that I couldn't be. But I am proud of fact that I did the right thing by sending your son to you with my last bit of money. It means the world to me that you held on long enough for his visit, and he would have been devastated if he hadn't made it. Love you, now and forever. Amen.
