“ Dear Rob, Katie, Alicia, Shelby, Brian and Dale
A mom I knew lost her daughter in a car accident I said I give u so much credit cause I don't think I could live, I would just lay on the floor until I died if something happened, Her response was a response that I will never forget, ...she said " The children we have are not ours, they are God's ! He lends us them to teach and love. We are all on loan. We are all God's children and for whatever reason he has, it is not for us to always understand but be thankful that the Lord gave us the blessing of taking care of his child" I never thought of it that way until then and that was the only thing I have ever heard that made sense to me. Even though your pain is deeper than any of us can even imagine you have to realize that your son will never hurt, have a bad day, be in pain. Instead have pure love from our Lord and he could not be in better hands. Even though I know you would rather have him in yours know that he is not lacking for anything and is in a place that we can't even begin to imagine, but someday you yourself will be there and be able to hold and love him for an eternity. I would rather have an eternity than a life time with my child. I know what I am saying doesn't change the way you feel but Jesus can bring you Peace and understanding if you just give yourself to him! He wants you to cry on his shoulder's and pour your deepest thoughts and feelings to him. He understands. God lost his son as well on the cross. He knows your pain. I love u
